Best Indian Snacks to Enjoy with Chai and Coffee in the UK

A warm cup of chai or freshly brewed coffee is often the perfect way to pause and unwind during a busy day. Across Indian households, these moments are traditionally accompanied by delicious snacks that add flavour, texture, and enjoyment to every sip.

Today, this much-loved custom continues throughout the UK, where families regularly serve traditional Indian snacks during tea breaks, social visits, and family gatherings. The combination of hot drinks and savoury treats creates a comforting experience that brings people together while celebrating familiar flavours.

From crispy classics to premium nut selections, there are plenty of options that complement tea and coffee beautifully. In this guide, we explore some of the most popular Indian Tea Time Snacks UK households enjoy and how Chandra Foods helps make every tea break more satisfying.

The Timeless Appeal of Indian Tea-Time Snacking

More Than Just a Daily Habit

Tea time has long been a part of Indian culture. It provides an opportunity to relax, connect with loved ones, and enjoy a few moments away from daily routines. Snacks play an important role in this tradition, adding variety and making the occasion feel complete.

Whether enjoyed in the afternoon or evening, the combination of tea and snacks remains a favourite ritual for many families.

Why the Combination Works So Well

The secret lies in contrast. Warm beverages offer smoothness and comfort, while snacks contribute crunch, seasoning, and flavour.

A flaky savoury bite paired with a cup of masala chai creates a balance that feels both comforting and indulgent. Likewise, lightly spiced snacks can complement coffee by adding texture and depth to every mouthful.

Suitable for Every Occasion

Indian snacks fit naturally into many different settings, including:

- Morning coffee breaks
- Afternoon tea sessions
- Family gatherings
- Social visits with friends
- Festive celebrations
- Weekend relaxation

Their versatility makes them a staple in homes across the UK.

Qualities of a Great Tea-Time Snack

A Satisfying Crunch

Texture is one of the biggest reasons certain snacks pair so well with hot drinks. Crispy and crunchy snacks create contrast, making the overall experience more enjoyable.

Easy to Serve

Tea-time favourites should be convenient and simple to share. Snacks that can be served directly from the pack are ideal when entertaining guests or enjoying a quick break.

Balanced Flavour

The best tea-time snacks offer enough flavour to be enjoyable without overpowering the drink. Savoury and mildly spiced options often work particularly well alongside both chai and coffee.

Convenient for Modern Lifestyles

Ready-to-eat snacks are increasingly popular among busy households. Having quality snacks available means tea time can be enjoyed without lengthy preparation.

Pharsi Puri: A Traditional Favourite

Crisp and Flaky Perfection

Pharsi Puri remains one of the most loved tea-time snacks in Indian cuisine. Its flaky texture and light seasoning make it an excellent companion to hot drinks.

Every bite delivers a satisfying crunch that pairs especially well with freshly brewed chai.

Ideal for Serving Guests

Because it is easy to present and requires no preparation, Pharsi Puri is often included in snack platters when friends and family visit.

Ways to Enjoy It

Popular serving options include:

- Tea-time sharing platters
- Snack bowls for gatherings
- Combined with chutneys
- Festive food spreads

Tikha Gathiya: A Flavourful Choice

A Gujarati Classic

Tikha Gathiya is known for its distinctive taste and crunchy texture. This traditional Gujarati snack has become increasingly popular among UK households seeking authentic flavours.

A Perfect Match for Chai

The mild heat and savoury character of Tikha Gathiya pair exceptionally well with tea. The warmth of chai balances the seasoning, creating a combination many snack lovers enjoy.

Great for Family Sharing

Whether served during casual conversations or weekend gatherings, Tikha Gathiya brings people together around the table.

Sev: Light and Enjoyable Anytime

A Versatile Snack Option

Sev remains one of the most widely enjoyed Indian snacks. Its light texture and subtle seasoning make it suitable for both tea and coffee breaks.

Loved by All Ages

Because it is easy to eat and not overly heavy, Sev appeals to both younger and older family members.

Serving Inspiration

Sev can be enjoyed:

- On its own
- As part of mixed snack platters
- Alongside dips and chutneys
- Combined with other savoury snacks

Chaat Papdi: A Creative Tea-Time Addition

Not Just for Chaat

While commonly used in popular street-food recipes, Chaat Papdi also works well as a standalone snack. Its crispy texture makes it a welcome addition to tea-time spreads.

Perfect for Entertaining

Hosts often appreciate Chaat Papdi because it can be served plain or customised with toppings to create a more interactive snack experience.

A Flexible Option

Its versatility makes it suitable for everything from casual family gatherings to larger celebrations.

Premium Nuts for Tea and Coffee Breaks

Almonds

Almonds provide a satisfying crunch and a naturally mild flavour that pairs beautifully with hot drinks.

Cashews

With their rich texture and pleasant taste, cashews bring a premium touch to tea-time snacking.

Pistachios

Pistachios add colour, flavour, and variety, making them a popular choice for special occasions.

Mixed Nut Selections

Mixed nuts offer different textures and flavours in one serving, making them ideal for sharing with family and guests.

Building the Ultimate Tea-Time Platter

Combine Different Textures

A balanced snack platter should include a variety of textures, such as:

- Crunchy gathiya
- Flaky Pharsi Puri
- Light Sev
- Premium nuts

This creates a more enjoyable eating experience.

Include Popular Favourites

A well-rounded platter may feature:

- Pharsi Puri
- Tikha Gathiya
- Sev
- Chaat Papdi
- Mixed nuts

Offering variety ensures there is something for everyone.

Add Simple Finishing Touches

Enhance your presentation with:

- Roasted nuts
- Dry fruits
- Fresh herbs
- Decorative serving dishes

Keep It Easy and Inviting

Neat presentation encourages guests to help themselves and creates a welcoming atmosphere without requiring extensive preparation.

Snack Ideas for Different Occasions
